

PRESS RELEASE

GOPAS is bringing tools designed for mastering office computer skills, for increasing the employability of individuals and for supporting business efficiency

4th of May, 2011, Prague, Czech Republic and Dar es Salaam, Tanzania

GOPAS will be attending the eLearning Africa 2011 conference and exhibition to introduce the latest version of its eLearning courses for the wide range of Microsoft Office 2010 applications, together with courses for the Microsoft Windows 7 Operating System.

GOPAS anticipates potential interest in the local market, especially in the Higher Education and Business sectors. As knowledge of and efficient use of office computer applications increasingly becomes a basic requirement, the need for appropriate and cost-effective training tools is increasing. Developing and maintaining office skills on the one hand helps to improve individual employability and on the other hand supports the productivity of the varied business sectors.

GOPAS has been developing eLearning courses for Microsoft Office applications since 2002. Its eLearning portfolio also includes courses for the Microsoft operating systems and the ECDL4 and ECDL 5 courses. Based on its continuing success in the Czech and Slovak markets, in 2007 GOPAS started to develop versions of its products in other languages. For the latest Microsoft Office 2010 application suite English, French and German versions of its courses are available.

Whether installed directly on a PC, integrated into intranet pages, run from the Learning Management System of an enterprise or a university or directly on-line from the GOPAS learning portal, customers can choose the means of access suitable for them. Thanks to the availability of the AICC and SCORM interfaces and of Flash technology to use for simulation, implementation is straightforward and the technical requirements are modest. More details about the courses and their availability can be found at <http://elearning.gopas.eu>.

GOPAS, with educational experience dating back to 1992, is the largest IT training provider in the Central Europe. Each year more than 25,000 IT professionals are trained at the GOPAS training facilities or at customers' premises in the Czech and Slovak Republics.

GOPAS, a. s., is registered in the Czech Republic (ID CZ63911035) at the address Kodanska 46, 10100 Prague 10, Czech Republic.
